THE VENUE

The stunning setting, tranquil location and friendly atmosphere of Stowe make it the perfect venue for a very special wedding day. Steeped in history, Stowe House is a hidden gem set amongst the rolling Buckinghamshire countryside. Incredible architectural heritage, natural beauty and a connection with the past adds romance, elegance and individuality to your special day.

Surrounded by the gardens of the National Trust Stowe, landscaped with temples, lakes and follies, this venue reflects both past and present and the paths of Vice and Virtue once taken by the visitors to the residing home of the Temple-Grenville family. The architects and sculptors, painters and gardeners who have left their unmistakable signatures on Stowe House include Sir John Vanbrugh, William Kent and Lancelot 'Capability' Brown.

Stowe House offers a choice of unique State Rooms for your Civil Ceremony, Wedding Breakfast and Evening Reception, each as individual as your wedding day and superbly decorated by a host of world-renowned artists and architects. The South Portico provides the perfect backdrop for Reception Drinks and the adjacent gardens are available for lawn games. This exterior space as well as each room benefit from spectacular views across the South Lawns to the Octagon Lake and Corinthian Arch.

STATE ROOMS

For magnificence and splendour, you need look no further than the Marble Saloon. Based on the Pantheon in Rome with its awe-inspiring ceiling and striking columns, this State Room encapsulates romance and opulence.

Placed adjacent to the Marble Saloon, the ornate decoration of the Music Room, scrupulously designed by Vincenzo Valdrè, boasting paintings depicting the timeless motifs of commemoration and music, embellished with gold lead to create a wonderfully inviting and warm space.

Relish a banqueting experience in the State Dining Room, oozing natural light and boasting a breath-taking, intricate ceiling, this space enables you and your guests to dine in the most splendid of settings.

Within the East Wing of the House, the Blue Room's Damask silk which adorns its walls coupled with its glistening chandelier creates an ambiance perfect for smaller and more intimate celebrations.

The glamour and beauty continues through to the Temple Room where your eyes can feast on the gold and silver ceiling and the portraits of the last Dukes who owned Stowe. This room makes the perfect setting for your evening reception, housing our bar which mimics the grand temples which surround this historical mansion.
